

New Buildings in Lower Manhattan

New York City April 17—18, 2010

Lower Manhattan, in the TriBeCa and SoHo districts, there are some fascinating new buildings. Upper left is the new 'New Museum'. And, upper right is a skyscraper whose name I did not get. But, notice the unique modular exterior skin going on. It'd be interesting to see how this turns out. Below are additional sleek modern high-rises.

Steve Wiser, AIA

WiserAIA@Hotmail.com www.WiserDesigns.com

New Buildings in Lower Manhattan

New York City April 17—18, 2010

Above: neat modern office building. No idea its name or designer.
In the shopping district.

Below: two all glass buildings.

Steve Wiser, AIA
WiserAIA@Hotmail.com www.WiserDesigns.com

New Buildings in Lower Manhattan

New York City April 17—18, 2010

This was a very surprising new contemporary building. It is just to the east of the new Cooper Union Building.

I have no idea who designed it, but, it looks like a fun project.

I'd love to go to a party on the top floor penthouse that cantilevers out over the side!

Steve Wiser, AIA
WiserAIA@Hotmail.com www.WiserDesigns.com

*New Buildings in Lower Manhattan
New York City April 17—18, 2010*

This is the new Cooper Union Building
by Thom Mayne.

Simply amazing!

*Steve Wiser, AIA
WiserAIA@Hotmail.com www.WiserDesigns.com*