

Paoli Peaks

February 7, 2010

On Sunday, February 7, 2010, I went skiing at Paoli Peaks in southern Indiana.

It had been several years since I was last there since my ski buddies (my daughters Jen and Erin) have moved away and no longer near to go skiing.

Had a fun time and did not fall at all, which was good. Here are some photos from my trip

The east 'bunny' slope has been changed since last time I was at Paoli. It now has a conveyor lift and not tow rope. It also is fenced in so that the newbie skiers cannot go down the slopes accidentally.

Another new addition is a tubing hill.

Scroll down to the end
for more photos!

Paoli Peaks February 7, 2010

Above Left: : Ski lift with lodge at the top of the hill;
and, Above Right: ski lift with snow blowing machines

Below left: poor skier is injured and had to be snow-mobiled to the top;
And, Below right: always fun to see different ski gear!

Steve Wiser, AIA
WiserAIA@Hotmail.com www.WiserDesigns.com

*Paoli Peaks
February 7, 2010*

Steve Wiser, AIA
WiserAIA@Hotmail.com www.WiserDesigns.com

Paoli Peaks February 7, 2010

Another new addition was the snowboarding area with all sorts of things for the snow boarding folks to 'play' on. I enjoyed this area as well. The slope wasn't too steep and with all the different 'obstacles', it was fun to ski between these things!